Hang tense: How to surf the NY subway

► NYU scientist confirms what you already suspected: It's filthy down there ► Fecal matter – yes, really – from unwashed hands spreads germs

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN/METRO

► Brace yourself: After learning that subway poles and seats can carry bacteria like E. coli, you might not want to touch anything, either.

Tidied daily, but cleaned bimonthly

NEW YORK. An MTA spokesman said that garbage and spills are tidied up every time trains reach their north or south terminal. Every night, 2,000 of the 6,000 car interiors are swept, mopped and wiped down. If time allows, the handrails are cleaned too. But the most thorough cleaning only occurs every inspection cycle, which can be 73 days or 11,000 miles. Doors, rails, walls and vents are cleaned. That's also when mice and rats run over by trains are scraped off the bottom of subway cars, according to the MTA. ● METRO/EA

There exists a certain group of straphangers who don't touch anything — not a seat, not a handrail, not a pole — when using the city's subway system.

To avoid germs, riders like Lora French, a 26-year-old freelance writer, have learned to travel through the jerking and lurching subway tunnels balanced on their own two feet and nothing else.

And they may be on to something: The city's subway system is even dirtier than you might have thought, home to bacteria

Best and worst

Every year, the Straphangers Campaign releases their "Schmutz Report." This year, cars on R line were the dirtiest, and cars on the 7 line were the cleanest — with the least trash, grime and spills.

like E. coli.

"In studies I've done there were several hundred to several thousand organisms per five square inches," says New York University microbiologist

- Three cleanest lines:
 - 7 68 percent of cars clean
 - C 62 percent clean
 - M 61 percent clean
- Three filthiest lines:
 - E 36 percent of cars clean
 - G 36 percent clean
 - R 27 percent clean

Philip Tierno, who has studied subway grime.

Hepatitis A and pinkeye are among the other viruses lurking on every handrail, warns Tierno. They come from fecal matter, which is transmitted to the subway on riders' improperly washed hands, he said.

"The handles have been touched a great deal and are the most contaminated," he said. "They touch the pole, you touch the pole, you touch your eye, and you may get pinkeye."

"I'm not going to touch anything if I can help it," says French, a one-time New Yorker who now lives in Colorado. "The subway is much dirtier than a toilet seat. I've seen pools of urine; I'd never lay down on those seats."

She describes her contact-less form of subway riding as urban "surfing."

"I would take a stance with my legs apart so I didn't have to grab anything [and] pretend I was on a surfboard," she said.

Tierno said he, too, avoids touching anything when zipping along underground. "It's good to try, if you can do it without breaking your leg when the train jerks," he said.

Two kids killed in crashes

► Two-year-old dies chasing after candy ► Teen killed after SUV lands on her ► Saved other children first

Two children were killed in car crashes in Brooklyn and Queens in two separate incidents over the weekend.

Andrew Ramirez, 2, was struck Saturday night in Elmhurst by a van after he reportedly ran out into the street in search of candy left behind following a

Parks Department bust of illegal vendors.

Police said Ramirez was pronounced dead at the hospital, and the 39-year-old driver of the 2007 Chevy van was not injured.

In a separate incident four hours later in Brownsville, Brooklyn, a teenage girl was killed in a freak accident by an out-of-control SUV — after she first saved the lives of six other children.

After seeing a Range Rover driving erratically down Pacific Street, where she lived, Kira Goddard, 13, shepherded six children to safety at 2025 Pacific Street, near Ralph Avenue.

But she did not have time to save herself and was hit as the Range Rover careened backwards. She was pronounced dead at the scene. No charges will be filed in either incident, police said.

Attention LIRR Montauk Branch Customers

No train service between Speonk and Montauk August 2 – 4.

Buses will replace trains in both directions during the outage. Regular service is expected to resume on Thursday, August 4 at 1 PM.

Beginning at 12:40 PM on Tuesday, August 2 and continuing until 1PM on Thursday, August 4, buses will replace trains between Speonk and Montauk while the LIRR replaces a bridge in Southampton that was struck and severely damaged by a truck. This emergency repair will also allow Hill Station Road to reopen to vehicles.

Eastbound: Take your train as far as Speonk, and then board buses for stations Westhampton through Montauk. Allow up to 40 minutes additional travel time.

Eastbound PM Peak, August 2 & 3: The 6:17 PM train from Jamaica, scheduled to arrive at Speonk at 7:55 PM, will end at Speonk, where you will board buses to continue on to Westhampton, Hampton Bays, Southampton, Bridgehampton, East Hampton, Amagansett and Montauk.

Westbound: At stations Montauk through Westhampton board buses to Speonk where train service will resume. You will board buses up to 39 minutes earlier and arrive at your final destination at the normal time.

Westbound AM Peak, August 3 & 4: Customers for the 5:39 AM train from Montauk, scheduled to arrive at Amagansett at 5:58 AM, East Hampton at 6:03 AM, Bridgehampton at 6:12 AM, Southampton at 6:22 AM, and Westhampton at 6:41 AM, will board buses at your station for Speonk, where normal service will resume for points west.

Please note: Other Eastbound and Westbound Off-Peak trains are canceled East of Speonk and will be bused during this outage as well.

For detailed information and updated schedules, including bus arrival/departure times, pick up the special timetable, "East of Speonk Customers," visit www.mta.info/lirr or call the LIRR Travel Information Center at 718-217-LIRR (5477).

Report: MTA owes riders more notice

► Transit agency blasted in new report ► Weekend work is happening more frequently and lasting longer

Every subway rider dreads the words "service changes," and the MTA needs to do more when they occur, a scathing report released yesterday alleges. New York City Comptroller John Liu and New York State Comptroller Thomas DiNapoli accused the MTA of spending too much money on too little work and inadequately informing riders of train diversions.

Auditors visited 39 stations from January 2009 to January 2011. They returned with dismal details: The MTA was hardly posting as many signs as promised. Despite the MTA's vow, there were no signs at street-level and auditors only found signs in English.

"This confirms the nagging suspicion of riders, residents and business owners alike — that subway service is taken down more than necessary." LIU

The agency reroutes trains even when rails receive no work, the audit found, estimating that the MTA wasted $10.5 million on diversions by not efficiently using repair time. In one instance, sandhogs finished weekend work on the A train in Far Rockaway ten hours ahead of schedule, but the MTA still didn't bother to resume service.

An MTA spokesman said that the agency keeps customers updated with website, e-mail and text alerts.

► The MTA needs to do a better job of informing riders when stations are closed, the report finds. "It's unreasonable that they don't tell you how to get to the alternative," said Manhattanite Jessica Pearce, who was trying to get to Midtown East and was foiled by the 4/5 closure yesterday.

Say "No" to the Mask

Are you one of the millions of people who snore and refuse to wear the mask? Or do you currently wear a mask but need an alternative?

There is a solution.

Our specialists at the Manhattan Snoring & Sleep Center only treat snoring and sleep apnea.

Taking a minimally invasive, in-office approach allows you to get quick, safe and affordable treatment, avoid painful surgery and cumbersome masks.

WHY WAIT?

Going untreated is not an option. Ignoring your sleep apnea can lead to serious health issues.

Sleep is not a luxury... It's a necessity.

You don't have to live with the mask.

We can tailor a plan to treat your sleep apnea, and give you the quality sleep you need.

80 killed in Syrian attack

AMMAN. Syrian tanks firing shells and machine guns stormed the city of Hama yesterday, killing 80 civilians, rights activists said, in one of the bloodiest days in a popular revolt against President Bashar al-Assad.

The assault on Hama, scene of a 1982 massacre when Assad's father crushed an Islamist uprising, began at dawn on the eve of the Muslim fasting month of Ramadan after security forces laid siege to the city for almost a month. REUTERS

Obama announces debt deal reached

- ▶ Plan would raise debt ceiling through 2012, cut spending by $1 trillion
- ▶ Boehner says deal's not perfect, but wants to bring it to a vote quickly

▶ President Barack Obama delivered the news last night that a compromise had finally been reached.

President Barack Obama said last night that leaders of both parties in the U.S. House and Senate had approved an agreement to raise the nation's debt ceiling and cut the federal deficit.

"The leaders of both parties in both chambers have reached an agreement that will reduce the deficit and avoid default," Obama said at the White House.

Congressional leaders are sifting through the details of the tentative bipartisan agreement to raise the debt ceiling, preparing to sell the deal to skeptical Republicans and Democrats ahead of possible votes today.

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid endorsed the emerging accord among Republican leaders and the Obama administration even as negotiators were working out the final details. Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell told senators last night that the U.S. will not default on its obligations.

The framework would raise the $14.3 trillion debt ceiling through 2012, cut spending by about $1 trillion and call for enactment of a law shaving another $1.5 trillion from long-term debt by 2021 — or institute punishing reductions across all government areas, including Medicare and defense pro-

Markets react

▶ Equities rose while gold and the yen dropped early today, with investors cutting safety trades after Washington reached a last minute deal to escape default, though the top U.S. credit rating could still be downgraded.

▶ U.S. S&P 500 stock futures bounced 1.4 percent and futures on U.S. Treasuries — which have maintained their haven status despite being at the eye of the debt ceiling impasse — slid.

▶ Investors were still on guard though since the plan, which is likely to come to a vote in Congress today, may not necessarily satisfy Standard & Poor's enough to keep the U.S. triple-A debt rating.

Boehner wants to vote soon

House Speaker John Boehner told fellow Republicans yesterday that he aims to bring a debt-ceiling deal up for a vote "as soon as possible" even though it is not perfect, his office said.

"My hope would be to file it and have it on the floor as soon as possible," Boehner said. "This isn't the greatest deal in the world. But it shows how much we've changed the terms of the debate in this town."

The U.S. Senate will likely vote today on a proposal, a senior congressional aide said.

Across the Capitol, House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi of California said she was reserving judgment on the plan until she could see details and discuss them with fellow Democrats, some of whom were already voicing concern that the package calls for steep spending cuts with no tax increases to help shrink the deficit.

"We all may not be able to support it — or none of us may be able to support it," she told reporters at the Capitol.

Rebels clash with Gaddafi loyalists

Rebel forces fought gunmen loyal to Muammar Gaddafi in eastern Libya yesterday in the latest incident to undermine the insurgents' grip in territory they hold.

The clashes renewed opposition fears that Gaddafi's agents had infiltrated the area, days after the mysterious killing of the rebel military commander.

The assassination of Gen. Abdel Fattah Younes, apparently by gunmen on his own side, has hurt the opposition just as it was winning broader international recognition and making gains against Gaddafi's forces in the western mountains and elsewhere. REUTERS

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

► Organizations like the Association for Women in Science and the Society of Women Engineers promote educational advancement for females in the fields of science and math.

Women in science: STEM taking root

► Female jobs in science, technology, engineering and mathematics are on the rise ► Is tradition the barrier?

As demands for advances in engineering and science grow, women are increasingly interested in joining those fields.

According to the National Science Foundation, the amount of women engaging in the fields of science, technology, engineering and mathematics, or STEM, has grown significantly since the 1970s. Fewer than 78,000 women were enrolled as graduate students in science and engineering in 1977 — compared with nearly 232,000 in 2008.

Still, men overwhelmingly dominate STEM fields. So what is preventing women from fully takand science are for boys, while they should focus more on literature and writing.

Many women in STEM professions say more women need to pursue careers in these fields. History is probably a good indicator that it's just a matter of time. After all, it wasn't long ago that you wouldn't see a woman's name on a ballot for a major election or listed as CEO of a Fortune 500 company.

It might not be long before they become front and center in the world of math and science, too.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Fieri: Not that 'Guy'

Being one of the Food Network's biggest stars — and host of the popular game show "Minute to Win It" — comes with its perks, but also its downfalls. For Guy Fieri, it's the hair-gelled copycats who fool his legions of fans that really get him upset.

"We get quite a few requests for autographs. I mean, every week I sign a hundred or so ... but [some] fans will send a picture and it's them and an impostor," Fieri told Metro at the Atlantic City Food and Wine Festival over the weekend (apparently there was one of these impostors at the fest). "And I'll send it back, and I'll send them a picture, and I'll autograph it and say: 'I'm very sorry, this isn't me.' And they're heartbroken, because these clowns stand there and don't say 'No, I'm not Guy.'"

Take note, fans: Next time you see a guy sporting a flame-embossed T-shirt, a goatee and sunglasses inside, think twice before snapping a photo with him. Instead of the famed Fieri, it could just be someone with really bad fashion sense.

Stop making so much sense, Beyonce

Beyonce

You think it's bad having your mother ask you when you're going to have a baby? Just try facing the harpies at "The View." The thought alone is enough to make your ovaries hide behind the couch.

That's exactly what Beyonce Knowles faced last week when she appeared on the talk show. Luckily, she took it in stride when the baby question was asked. She said when she and Jay-Z have kids isn't up to them, despite having initially said she expected to have one by the time she was 30. "I thought 30 was so old back then," says Beyonce, who turns 30 next month. "You know, one day [it will happen]. That's something that God has to decide. When it happens, it happens. I'm just so happy to be in this place in my life."

The next tattoo

Metro got the scoop on Fieri's next possible tattoo: "I think I'm getting a joker card or a jack, one of the two, of [my kids] Hunter and Ryder, and one side of the card will be Hunter and the other side will be Ryder, just because they are a couple jokers," Fieri says. "I don't know. I have a million ideas. I'm always dropping them down on napkins and going to my tattoo artist and talking about them."

Talking points

Angelina knows who she is Angelina Jolie doesn't love acting as much as she used to, she tells the Financial Times. "I think when I was younger, I needed it more. I was trying to question things in life, so you find these characters that help you find things and grow," she explains. "I'm older, and I know who I am." And while she isn't necessarily talking retirement, Jolie says she and Brad Pitt are numbered. "As Brad and I get older, we're going to do fewer films," she says. "We've had a nice run, and I don't want to be doing this our whole lives. There are a lot of other things to do."

He's not a player ... really

Rumors of Ryan Reynolds' post-divorce dating life have been greatly exaggerated, the actor insists. "Right now I seem to be on a speed-dating mission — at least according to those rumors that are going around," Reynolds says, according to Hollyscoop. "Even my mom is confused. No man is potent enough to be able to go through as many women as that in such a short amount of time like I allegedly have." As for his actual love life, Reynolds says he's still getting over his split from Scarlett Johansson: "I'm just giving myself time to put everything that has happened behind me, and I'm taking things as they come. But I'm going to be ready for a relationship again soon," he says.

Miley Cyrus' latest ink

To show her support for same-sex marriage, Miley Cyrus has had an equal sign tattooed on her right ring finger. The Disney star showed off the new ink with a photo posted on Twitter, adding that "all love is equal." One Cyrus fan was quick to disagree with her stance, to which Cyrus replied, "Where does it say in the Bible to judge others? Oh right, it doesn't. God is the only judge, honey. 'God is love.'"

'True Blood': What's up with the creepy babies?

Vampires, faeries, werewolves and witches all populate Ron Toms this season on "True Blood." But the character that's freaking us out the most? The creepy baby terrorizing momma Arlene (Carrie Preston) and daddy-through-marriage, Terry (Todd Lowe).

When speaking to journalists gathered at the Television Critics Press tour, creator Alan Ball admitted it's "great to take a really angelic baby and put scary music [in the scene]."

The child, biological son of Arlene's dead serial-killer ex, is now paired up with an even more terrifying tyke — the creepy doll.

"I think I actually wrote the script," Ball says of the introduction of the mangled plaything to the series last season. "Hoyt [Jim Parrack] and Jessica [Deborah Ann Woll] moved in, and he said, 'You know, let's go to New Hampshire. I'll become a minister and marry you.' Ball reminisces of the couple's reunion. "So I said, 'There should be something weird, like maybe let's just put a creepy doll in.' So the camera tilts down, and you see it. I had no idea where that was going to go. Then when we came back to work, I said, 'We've got to pick up that doll. We've got to figure out what's going on with that doll.' And, you know, that doll has found its way to the creepy baby."

A cure for summer blockbuster fatigue

► Don Cheadle on 'The Guard,' an exquisite little indie comedy
► How he figured out the Irish brogue
► Partaking in one of Hollywood's two best pastimes

Box office

'Cowboys & Aliens' ties 'Smurfs' at box office

Sci-fi Western "Cowboys & Aliens" landed in a dead heat with animated family film "The Smurfs" at the weekend box office with each movie taking in about $36.2 million in U.S. and Canadian theaters, according to studio estimates released on Sunday.

Superhero flick "Captain America: The First Avenger" finished third with $24.9 million in ticket sales during its second weekend in theaters.

The weekend's other new release, "Crazy, Stupid, Love," opened at No. 5 with $19.3 million — more than enough to beat fellow rom-com "Friends With Benefits," but not enough to edge out "Harry Potter: Deathly Hallows Part 2." REUTERS

With a miniscule budget, mostly Irish cast, a witty (if slightly dark) script, and set in a tiny village in western Ireland, "The Guard" is about as far from a superhero blockbuster as you can find this summer. And that's just fine for co-star and executive producer Don Cheadle.

"They are trying to go for the common denominator," means Cheadle about summer blockbusters (to be fair, he did point out he has starred in a few). "They make it so everyone can get it; they are taking every nuance out. The things that would spark our interest are blunted. Things get really brought down, I think. Opportunities [like 'The Guard'] are rare for us."

Rare, but hilarious. "The Guard"'s plot revolves around an eccentric Irish cop named Gerry Boyle (Brendan Gleeson) who is

A crack at golf

During the four-week shoot — which was one of the wettest in Ireland's history — Cheadle got to hit up some of the country's famed golf courses.

"It didn't matter," he says about the inclement weather (but to hear how he described it, it sounds like it might've mattered quite a bit). "I love it. It's a nice respite. Golfing and crack — those are the two pastimes in Hollywood. I figure I should partake in one of them."

forced to work with FBI agent Wendell Everett (Cheadle) to crack an international murder/drug trafficking case that lands in Boyle's small town. And although in film, much fun is poked at Everett for being an outsider, Cheadle picked up on the accents quickly. "It's like music in a way. If you listen with a careful ear, you understand. Language is only a small percentage of communication anyway, right?"

Discover the hidden potential of temping

► Think twice before you cross a temp position off your list.

- In this job market, only considering full-time, long-term positions will severely limit your job search
- How to make the most of your temporary gig

When you're looking to start your career, it's easy to skip over temporary job listings. But before you set your filter to only full-time positions, consider the possible benefits of temping.

"A lot of young people want to get their dream job right away, but it's more of a marathon than a sprint," says Andy Teach, author of "From Graduation to Corporation: The Practical Guide to Climbing the Corporate Ladder One Rung at a Time." "It's something that everyone should consider, especially in this economy."

Here's why you may want to give temping a chance.

It can lead to a long-term position

Plenty of employers treat temp positions as an opportunity to test-drive a potential full-timer. But even if the project has a very limited time frame, you still have the chance to network with managers who may have openings. "Find a company you really want to work for. If it's a great working environment, it's worth

Get LinkedIn

► Been ignoring those LinkedIn reminders to complete your profile since you signed up two years ago? Log in and fill it out immediately, advises Teach: "Employers are looking at it — they're really checking it now. For some, it's like you're invisible if you're not on LinkedIn."

just getting in there," says Teach. "You have to think long term — you'll be down the hall from the people you want to talk to."

You'll get an honest preview of the job

There's nothing worse than making it through three rounds of interviews only to realize that the management structure is worse than the coffee. "When you interview for a job, you never really know what's waiting for you," says Teach. "Temping can give you a priceless insight."

There's no commitment

If you settle for the wrong full-time gig, you'll have to give notice — and hopefully not navigate a no-compete contract — if a better job comes along. The same isn't true for temps. "If it doesn't work out, you don't have to worry so much about loyalty," says Teach.

Money talks:

Knowing how and when to negotiate

Do some research
before you grab for more.

- ◆ You landed the job, but not the paycheck you were hoping for
- ◆ When you can ask for more, and when to back off

It's the most dangerous game you can play with a job offer: Reject it. Bluff. Tell them to add a couple pounds to the paycheck if they want your services.

A select few professionals, however — like surgeons or oil company geologists — can and are expected to do just that. "But those are rare cases," says Al Lee, director of quantitative analysis at Payscale.com.

"The bulk of people will be in a category where there's a fair number of job seekers out there that can also do that job," he continues. "For them, the only good news is that, generally, companies like to hire their first choice.

Don't speak first

"Early in the interview, the employer might start probing you for salary expectations," notes Ron Krannich, author of "Dynamite Salary Negotiations."

Don't fall for the bait, he warns. "It's like poker: Whoever reveals his hand first is at a disadvantage. If they ask, deflect. Say 'I'd like to learn more about the position before we talk salary.'"

It's psychological."

If you're lucky enough to be that choice, you might feel inclined to push your luck an inch further for a game of pay-grade poker.

You'll need to know what the job would earn you elsewhere, Lee stresses.

But most importantly, you need to know how the company works, how it hires and what kind of finances it has on hand.

"Some companies just have a budget," he cautions. "This is how much they have to pay, and they'll hire the best person they can get for that money."

DREW HINSHAW
letters@metro.us

When the offer is firm

"You may not be able to negotiate much if it's just the standard package that they're offering," Krannich says. But that doesn't mean you have to fold.

"Talk about advancement opportunities," he encourages. "Are they going to allow you to move into a higher position?"

Alternately, see if they'll move up your next salary review, but keep in mind that there are other factors to consider. "The important thing isn't money," he says. "It's finding a job you love."

How to make Google+ work for your career

Advice

DAN SCHAWBEL

PERSONALBRANDINGBLOG.COM

In only a few weeks, Google's new social network has more than 18 million users. With Google+ technology, you have complete control over who sees what, thanks to the system's "Circles" — and that's important when you're trying to establish your brand and protect your online reputation.

Google

▶ Google's done it again.

The steps

Here are three things you can do right now to start building your personal brand on Google+.

▶ Complete your Google profile. Google profiles have been around for a long time, but most people disregarded them. Now with Google+, your profile plays a more important role in defining who you are on Google's social network. Fill out all of your information completely and make sure it is consistent with the rest of your Web presence.

▶ Create your Circles to distinguish your contacts. It's important that you separate your professional contacts from your personal contacts, so that when you publish content the right people are receiving information you're comfortable sharing — and it's more relevant to them.

▶ Use the "Sparks" feature to start discussions around your expertise. Add your interests based on the types of content you typically monitor. Then, when you click on each "Spark," you will have the latest news that you can share with different circles. Think of Sparks as a real-time search engine built on your interests. By sharing niche content through Sparks, you can build your brand as a subject-matter expert in your field.

BOOST YOUR CAREER IN FASHION WITH A TAILOR-MADE EDUCATION

Fashion may sparkle on the runway, but for all its glitz and glamour it's still a business — and an extremely challenging one at that. Successful careers in business demand the right educational background, and that's where LIM College could play an important role in your future. Located in midtown Manhattan, LIM College is the only institution of higher learning in the U.S. that is dedicated solely to teaching the business of fashion — both on the undergraduate and graduate level.

Whether you're new to the field, or wish to advance your career by updating and expanding your skills, LIM College's Center for Graduate Studies & Continuing Education offers a wide variety of programs that will point you on the path to success.

Consider a Professional Certificate, at the undergraduate or graduate level, offered in Event Planning, Retail Management, Visual Merchandising, Entrepreneurship, and Fashion Management. You only need to complete 4 to 5 courses to earn this credential.

Those who are seeking to move into the fashion field and who already have a bachelor's degree in another field can earn an Associate in Applied Science (AAS) degree in Fashion Merchandising through LIM College's Access Program. Typically, it takes just one academic year to complete the required 33 credits. A required internship in the fashion industry will help build your résumé and you'll benefit from LIM College's expert career placement assistance.

If you have not completed a degree, you may be able to earn a bachelor's degree in as little as two years through LIM College's FLEX Program. Up to 65 credit hours earned at an accredited college or university can be transferred toward your LIM College degree. Credit may be offered for documented prior work/life experience through our Prior Learning Assessment Option. The combination of online courses, hybrid courses (50% online, 50% face-to-face) and traditional face-to-face courses is ideally suited to the adult learner.

LIM College also offers exciting learning opportunities to anyone who wishes to explore the fashion world through individual courses in Fashion Merchandising, Marketing, Management or Visual Merchandising.

For more than 70 years, graduates of LIM College have found success. Become a part of that tradition of excellence as you prepare yourself for the career of your dreams.

Keeping the party fun — and safe

► Nobody's saying beer pong doesn't have a time and a place ► But according to one college professor, schools need to help control extreme behaviors

► Ohio University professor Thomas Vander Ven wants schools to communicate with local bars to keep students safer.

Ohio University professor Thomas Vander Ven has been studying underage drinking patterns since 2005. His latest book, "Getting Wasted: Why College Students Drink Too Much and Party So Hard," is a formal study of the patterns behind college drinking.

Has excessive drinking increased on campuses?

We've had a lot of research since 1993. Binge drinking rates have remained stable; at the same time, we've had a massive increase in programming to reduce it. The other significant trend is an increase in the number of abstainers — those that don't drink at all. But, interestingly, we've also had an increase in frequent binge drinkers.

What can colleges do to make drinking safer?

► For starters, we can definitely do something about the heavy drinking that occurs on 21st birthdays. There's a sort of cultural mandate to get the birthday boy or girl staggeringly drunk. This is often facilitated by local bars. Colleges should start communicating with these establishments immediately. We also need to institutionalize and strengthen some of the informal social support that's already there. For instance, we need to teach bystander intervention techniques.

Sounds like behavior is moving to the extremes.

That's a good way to put it. Should campuses be alcohol-free?

I don't think it's possible to eliminate drinking and keep enrollment where it is. But I don't think we should anyway. Students wouldn't be doing this if there weren't positives to it. It's not all negative outcomes: getting sick, getting arrested and burning couches. There's a lot of bonding, mutual affection and social support that emerges from the drinking scene.

Atheists look like fanatics

I am an atheist, and I am very disappointed in the group American Atheists for opposing the inclusion of a surviving section of beams in a 9/11 museum because the structure has been associated with a Christian cross. This remnant was not constructed to be a religious symbol. In choosing this battle, the members of American Atheists seem, ironically, more like religious extremists.

DAVID TERHUNE, BROOKLYN

More debate on taxing the rich

Allowing lower taxes for the rich makes sense only if the money that is not taxed is used for the economy, to spur job creation for U.S. citizens. However, money allowed by generous tax breaks to corporations is not generally used to keep Americans working. To the contrary, this money is spent to create jobs elsewhere in the world like China, Taiwan and India.

HENRY T. GAUDSMITH, NEW YORK

There seems to be much confusion about taxes, paying your fair share and who should pay more. The people who pay the highest taxes get the most benefit from a tax reduction. Tax them too much, attack them for being wealthy, and they just may not show up anymore. In fact, they might move overseas — where the atmosphere is somewhat friendlier.

Horoscope

Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Before turning down all of your ideas, you should put them to the test. A few of them that you've thought dubious will work out better than you think.
Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Although you can be a doubter more often than a believer, don't hesitate to follow the financial projections you and another have diligently researched and now believe in.
Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you hope to successfully sell your ideas, do not circumvent any of the issues. When you have an important point to make, be as direct as you are able.
Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Have faith in being able to achieve positive fulfillments, and don't let doubt dash your hopes. Certain factors that aren't obvious to you or others will be working out to your benefit.
Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Those who like you want good things to happen for you, so don't be fearful of imposing upon a good friend for a special favor. She or he will be delighted to help out.
Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Do what you can to achieve an important objective, because direct and strong action is the only way it'll ever be accomplished.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Instead of weaving your way through subordinates who have no power, go straight to the head honcho for what you want.

Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If you hold firmly to your beliefs about a commercial arrangement and what you expect from it, things could go rather well. Just remember to be fair.

Aries March 21-April 19. Although you do well working on your own, you'd do better teaming up with someone who has skills you don't possess. If you can ally with someone to achieve better results, do so.

Taurus April 20-May 20. Because you're someone who has had the patience to wait it out, seeds you've sown in the past should be ready for harvest — making for a profitable and productive day for you.

Gemini May 21-June 20. If you take the time to use your organizational skills, you will be able to control most developments that might arise with great efficacy. The one exception may be your own resources.

Cancer June 21-July 22. As long as you and your mate don't clash and get in each other's way, your collective efforts will greatly please both of you. It pays to be supportive instead of combative.

A GIANT COMEBACK

► Mark Herzlich has already overcome cancer ► So how tough can it be to overcome being skipped in the draft and signing as a free agent? ► Giants see huge potential in BC legend

Mark Herzlich has overcome far greater setbacks than not being drafted. So when the former Boston College star was bypassed by every team in April's draft, he simply shrugged it off and went back to work.

Herzlich, a star linebacker at Boston College who beat cancer, said he wasn't going to let something as trivial as a draft snub throw him off course — especially when the end result worked out for the best. His family's favorite team, the New York Giants, signed him to a free agent contract last week.

The fact there's multiple Boston College ties helps, Herzlich said, because much of the terminology and defensive philosophies are similar.

"There are a lot of BC connections everywhere I go here, which is nice. Mathias [Kiwunuka] is back. And there's Chris Snee, the Maras, and of course Coach Coughlin," he said. "There's certainly some different terminology but we played the same basic type of defense at Boston College."

General manager Jerry Reese said familiarity with the system will help Herzlich's cause, but signing backer spots. He can play strong, he can play the middle, he can play the weakside, and he can reach the passer," Reese said. "If he is at his form, which was 2008 when he was a monster, we are hoping that we can catch lightning in a bottle."

There are major concerns for the Giants at linebacker.

"It is wide open for our linebackers. We have some young players that we feel have talent and we are going to develop somebody," Reese said.

Reese said he is looking forward to seeing how Herzlich reacts to the "real football" action.

Whether it was Osi Umenyiora's brief one-day holdout, Plaxico Burress choosing that "other New York tenant" or the shocking jettisoning of valuable veterans, Big Blue's first-ever training camp at their East Rutherford facilities didn't lack for juice.

Head coach Tom Coughlin said there's no crying, because the other 31 teams are having the same problems.

"I wouldn't be surprised if it takes the better part of a week [to get some sort of jelling] because just think that six contracts are going to join us on Aug. 4 and we still are not at 90 players," Coughlin said. "We have some positions where the numbers are not where they need to be for us to even have a quality practice, so we need to solve some of those issues going forward. But we fully expected and anticipated this, that it would be a scramble." ● TONY WILLIAMS

► Jets sign Plaxico Burress to deal ► Receiver jets back to New York

The Jets added a shot of star-power and a big-body target for quarterback Mark Sanchez with Sunday's signing of wide receiver Plaxico Burress.

The wide receiver was released from prison in early June and though the 33-year-old has not played football in more than two seasons, Burress remained one of the most coveted offensive targets in free agency.

Burress made his decision to sign with the Jets while at Los Angeles International Airport yesterday, saying that it "wasn't a tough decision to make."

"Just gonna go with my heart and put myself in the best situation to compete and win a world championship," Burress said. "I feel like they have something special over here and I want to be a part of it."

On Nov. 28, 2008, he accidentally shot himself in the thigh with a handgun. After being hospitalized, Burress was charged with carrying a concealed weapon and has not played a football game since.

He was sentenced in Sept. 2009 and was released from prison this past June.

His signing provides Burress with a chance at redemption.

"It's over now," Burress said. "I'm in the right place."

The Jets made re-signing the talented Antonio Holmes a priority this off-season, inking their game-breaker to a five-year deal last Thursday.

"It's going to be special," Burress said of playing with Holmes. "We both know we can go out there and dominate games."

No start needed for Yanks at deadline

► Garcia, who won his 10th game yesterday, is a major reason the Yankees didn't trade for a starter.

► For once, Bombers stay out of the market ► Garcia, Colon performing at high enough level to stand pat ► Girardi: 'I didn't foresee one coming'

The Yankees constantly rave about the unexpected contributions from Bartolo Colon and Freddie Garcia.

That, combined with the exorbitant price for Ubaldo Jimenez and others, meant a very quiet trade deadline.

It is also the reason nobody should be surprised that a deal was not consummated by GM Brian Cashman.

"My reaction to not making a trade is: I didn't expect one," manager Joe Girardi said. "I didn't foresee one coming. As I've said, I worry about the guys in the room, and they've done a great job."

The Yankees felt their pitching staff — which has the AL's third-best ERA — did not need Jimenez, Hiroki Kuroda (who wouldn't waive his no-trade clause anyway) or the Astros' Wandy Rodriguez.

Cashman explored those options, but his decision was aided by the performances of Garcia, a 10-game winner with a 3.22 ERA and Colon, with eight wins and a 3.30 ERA.

Jimenez wound up in

"I explored every opportunity. It just didn't lead to anything I was comfortable with."

Cleveland because the Yankees were unwilling to meet Colorado's "Herschel Walker"-like asking price of catcher Jesus Montero and pitchers Dellin Betances and Manny Banuelos — and possibly Ivan Nova.

"I know it feels like we're in dire straits, but the reality is: If you look at what these guys are doing and what collectively they're all doing, it's pretty good," Cashman said. "We've got a lot of depth, and we have lot of different ways to go."

Sox add Bedard to rotation at last second

The Red Sox finally made their move for starting pitching depth Sunday, acquiring left-hander Erik Bedard from the Mariners for four minor-leaguers.

But did they only add to their depth of injury-prone starters?

Presumably, Bedard, who was 4-7 with a 3.45 ERA in 16 starts for the Mariners this season, will make his Red Sox debut against the Indians Wednesday or Thursday.

When he does, presuming he isn't hurt on the way, he'll be making his first post-July start since 2007. Such has been the fate of the oft-injured Bedard — who, when he was healthy for the Orioles in the mid-2000s, was one of the top young lefties in the game. JEFF GOLDBERG

Braves add Bourn to run

BRAVES. The Braves have their leadoff hitter. Atlanta traded outfielder Jordan Schafer and three prospects for speedy centerfielder Michael Bourn.

Bourn has 39 steals, tops in the majors, and is hitting .303 this season. He figures to slide immediately into the first spot in the lineup.

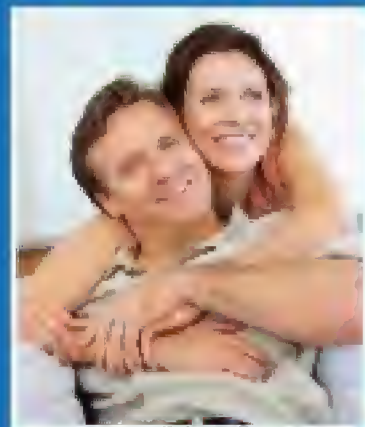

Rangers add RP Adams

RANGERS. Texas was looking at San Diego for relief help. They got it, but it wasn't closer Heath Bell.

The Rangers traded for Mike Adams, who has a 1.13 ERA this year. METRO

Jeter injures finger

Derek Jeter injured his right middle finger after being hit by a Jake Arrieta pitch yesterday.

X-rays were negative, but the short-stop is listed as day-to-day.

Jeter stayed in the game to run the bases and play the field in the fourth, but said he was having trouble throwing the ball and gripping the bat so he was removed.

Jeter was 0-for-1 in the game. He says he plans on being able to play today against the White Sox.

"I've been hit in my hand before," Jeter said. "It's not broken. As long as I can throw and swing then I'll play."

Manager Joe Girardi said he anticipates Jeter might miss a game or two, but that's all. METRO
